[illegible] E. W. HENLEY.

JOHN MITCHELL.—The Pilot, an Irish-American Democratic paper in Boston publishes a communication from an officer, who sends his name to the editor, and holds himself "personally responsible" for his statements, in which he brings the following charges against the Southern rebel:

There never was, in Ireland or on earth, a man who once loved John Mitchel, the Irish patriot, with a purer devotion than I. I now loathe and despise him for his cowardice. It was my misfortune to be severely wounded in Carolina during Gen. Sherman's recent campaign. Falling into rebel hands, I was twenty-seven days in a hospital at Charlotte, North Carolina, when I was sent to Richmond. Beside me, in hospital, was Major Warren Adams, 1st South Carolina Artillery, who frequently detailed me the manner of Captain Mitchel's death, and his dying words to his comrades, and if Adams be alive to day, he can bear witness to the fact of my speaking in the highest terms of old and young John Mitchel. Neither at Charlotte, Chester, Salisbury, Greensborough, Danville, or elsewhere, was I insulted by man, woman or child; rebel soldier and citizen pitied and [illegible] glorified in my condition. The fool only refused to aid. John Mitchel alone, who not "Lincoln's hirelings," (which we [illegible] or do with who we were,) but, in the next issue of the Examiner, directed the [illegible] to treat these human fungi not as prisoners of war, but as "robbers, murderers and hireling assassins!" So severely wounded was I, that taking pity on me, they refused to confine me in Richmond, and many of the citizens, among them Robert Tyler and Major Doody, both officers in the rebel service, ashamed of Mitchel's conduct, offered me any service in their power. Mitchel the faithless ingrate, the villifier of race and countrymen, alone took advantage of my misfortune; he alone went out of his way to insult, to calumniate, to trample upon the wasting, emaciated frames and wearied hearts of his countrymen in Libby, and for this he will be forever cursed by those Irishmen who were fated to come under his merciless and cowardly lash.

Texas has the honor of being the only State not overrun by the late enemy, and the only State that surrendered. Not so fast; has she surrendered? Don't know, but when the roads are crowded with soldiers singing "I am going home," it leads one to that conclusion. And what would you have her to do? She has been with the cat in all its struggles, and the universal opinion is that her sons carried the palm on every occasion; but finally the cat was whipped; would you have Texas [illegible] to go on with the fight in which the wildest dream of the imagination could not promise ultimate success? It was not by any grace or favor that we were not overrun; but the firm front shown on every occasion by her troops, and the whipping administered at Galveston and Sabine Pass and Louisiana and Arkansas; to these she owed her individual safety from the ravages of war. We never dreamed of but of final success until Lee's surrender; then hope died; and the "I told you so" emerged from their holes. What our fate is to be for daring to quit "the finest Government on the planet" we know not; but we do know it has a mountain of debt to settle for the job of [illegible] us back, and as the South is ruined, it will be like squeezing blood out of a turnip to get help from her. But we are seeing the easy time now, the interregnum between [illegible] and [illegible]. It will not be long before we know and feel the worst. Yank has won the elephant; what will he do with it?—Huntsville Item.

GEN. LOGAN'S POLITICS.—Before the war Gen. Logan was an awful democrat, and actually committed himself against coercion. When Sumter was fired upon and his chief, Douglas, wheeled about and pronounced for coercion then, he, too, began to reconsider. It is said that he wrote to Douglas to know what to do, and that the latter replied, "Raise a regiment, John." Logan did so, and was soon Colonel by an old political [illegible], Gov. Yates. During the first year of the war he [illegible] very much of a democrat—fought for the Union with slavery. He dates his Abolitionism from the day he entered some Southern city—I think it was Nashville—and found no welcome except from the negroes. Last fall his wife bet a span of mules with Gen. Singleton that her husband would vote for Lincoln—and won them. A few weeks before the election he was given leave of absence, and announced that he would speak; but desirous of getting at his political associates, refused to say on which side he would [illegible]. He got a tremendous audience and pronounced for Lincoln, and then spoke twice each day till election. As the direct result the political revolution in Southern Illinois was the most remarkable thing in the last campaign.

THE TEXAS PRESS ON THE SITUATION.—We feel entirely [illegible] to conform ourselves to the sudden change that has come o'er the spirit of our dreams. But yesterday we were all looking with the most sanguine anticipations to the future glorious career of the Confederate States; and to-day it seems to be among the things that were! History affords no instance of such a sudden collapse of a powerful nation, that for four years has supported armies equal to the largest ever raised by the nations of Europe, and armies that have achieved victories that will be the admiration of future generations. The greatest warriors of ancient or modern times have been rivaled, if not surpassed, by the [illegible] military genius of the [illegible] of the Confederate armies.

It is humiliating to reflect that we are the first people recorded in history numbering 8,000,000 of freemen (or who once boasted of being freemen) who have been sold [illegible].—Galveston News.

SLIDELL AND MASON.—Slidell, Mason & Co. have been mute since the source of the conspiracy has been proved, and are laying aside some of their airs. The first named gentleman has given up his carriage, and is reducing his establishment to the mildest proportions becoming a man who staked all in a desperate game and lost. It was with reference to this day of possible reverses that his daughter secured a rich husband, who obtained a divorce from his wife to marry her, because she would one day rank among the diplomats, recognized and honored at court and among all nations. Alas for the hopes built upon a Southern Confederacy!

WHAT DEGRADATION!—Pierre Soule's former residence at New Orleans is now occupied as a colored orphan asylum, under the superintendence of a colored lady from Boston.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 2[illegible], 186[illegible]

Trying to Depress the Currency

The San Francisco [illegible], the organ of the [illegible] class whose ava[illegible] it is that wonderful greed for gold [illegible] early time [illegible] the New-hel[illegible] been laboring with a [illegible] tude of pains to show that the Government's paper is altogether worthless and that it is a curse both to the East and West which ought to be removed. Its partiality to the interests of the money holders of San Francisco, can also account for the course that paper is pursuing. [illegible] gold mines furnish us of this coast with a currency with which we can transact business but we should like to be informed how the East whose export of gold is steady and large could do without a paper currency of some kind to carry on business without money. Before the war there was not one third enough of coin in the country to meet the wants of exchange, and the absence was supplied by the issues of an almost incomputable number of State and private banks. During the last few years, coin has been sent abroad in greater proportionate quantities than ever before. The issues of private banks have been, to a great extent, superseded by those of the national Treasury and a paper currency system has been instituted in the East which answers all the ends of business there. This species of money was expected to be a permanent currency, and it is reprehensible in any one to labor to bring it into disrepute. [illegible] assaulting the Government's paper currency system by the most odious and depreciating names. It talks as if the issues of the National Banks were fated to meet inevitable repudiation. The sole reason of its course in this respect, is found in its desire to keep greenbacks below their market value, so that speculation may reap a harvest by purchasing them in. The "financial organ" of San Francisco, labors assiduously to promote the wishes and interests of those whom it represents, but in so doing it seems not to realize that it is working to the injury of all other classes and parties.

Pettifoggery of the Excusers of Treason.—It appears that Jeff. Davis has now about as many friends who are trying to save him from punishment as he had hopeful admirers when he was in the height of his usurped power. His failures having failed to secure the independence of the Confederacy to which they looked forward with an unprophetic vision, now undertake, as the next best service they can render its founder, to shield them from the legal consequences of their crime. From every quarter, but chiefly from our disappointed enemies in England and the turbulent Copperheads of our own country, frantic appeals are heard for a grant of full pardon to those who violated the laws, with a clear knowledge of the penalties they prescribe. A Victoria paper sees a complete parallel between the case of the first Napoleon and that of Jefferson Davis. It argues that as in the former case England was magnanimous (?), so in the present instance, America should be. It seems to us, however, that the circumstances of the two cases are not quite coincident. First, there is a slight difference between the position of a man called by the unanimous voice of a whole nation to be its governing head, and that of conspirator who attempts the dismemberment of a country and organizes a rebellion against its existing Government. Second, the "magnanimity" with which England pretends to have treated Napoleon was just as much worse than death as slow torture is more cruel than immediate execution. Suppose we were to imprison Jeff. Davis for life, as England did Napoleon. Does any one doubt but that Davis would prefer the halter to incarceration in a dark casemate on the Dry Tortugas? The "magnanimity" of England which our British neighbor hopes we will imitate, appears in its true light when we remember that Napoleon, rather than go to St. Helena, attempted suicide to escape the more dreadful horrors of a lingering imprisonment.

Next come the Copperheads with their importunate appeals for mercy in the case of prominent traitors. "We have subdued them," say these harmless wiseacres, "now let us show the world that we are too generous to take advantage of a disgraced opponent." Now, we doubt not this sounds very nice to the ears of those who did their utmost to prevent any whipping from being done, but we may assure ourselves that if the defeated party had been victorious, these same prattlers about generosity would be clamoring for the blood of loyal men. Had the rebels gained the battle, our Copperheads would have cried lustily for the hanging of every Northern man who has been conspicuous for his hostility to slavery and the rebellion. These adherents of the slavocracy have never yet spared the life of a person guilty of an offense against the system which they seem sworn to defend. Nor is it likely that they ever would, had they unlimited power. Every one who now pleads so pitifully for Jeff. Davis, shouted with demoniac malignity for the blood of John Brown. John Brown was a traitor and suffered death because he struck at slavery. Jeff Davis is a traitor, but say they he deserves pardon and high consideration in that his purpose was to uphold it.

The New York Express has long been noted for its subserviency to the pampered aristocracy of the South, and, of course is not yet ready to abandon it. That paper publishes a long article to show that treason is no crime and that the day has passed when it ought to be punished as such. A wonderful facility the Express has in citing the facts of history and the fictions of its own making. It says:

The Canadians rebelled, but none were hung. Spared monuments of British mercy are not only numerous in Canada, but some of them are in our city. Jackson hung no rebels in the 1832 rebellion of South Carolina, Washington none in the Whiskey rebellion of Pennsylvania, and none were hung by Massachusetts, in the great Shays rebellion which once convulsed that old Commonwealth to its very centre.

None of these are parallel cases, and a considerable part of what is here said about them is untrue. McKenzie and Papineau, the chief leaders of the Canadian rebellion, were not hanged because they could not be caught, though a thousand pounds were offered for the capture of each of them. An amnesty was not declared until ten years afterwards. Several who had been apprehended were executed, among whom were Lount and Matthews. No rebels were hung by Jackson in 1832, because South Carolina's dissatisfaction did not lead her people to the perpetration of any overt act. In the "Whiskey Insurrection" there were none killed except a few of the insurgents, and the whole affair was but a riot. Thirteen persons concerned in Shays' rebellion were sentenced to death but none of them were hanged, because their leader had escaped and was not discovered until a long time afterward. None of these petty rebellions resembled in the smallest degree the great effort recently made to destroy our Government. In none of the foregoing instances was there an organized system of starving prisoners, burning populous cities or assassinating Presidents and Cabinets. All these atrocities Davis and his confederates perpetrated to sustain themselves in this causeless revolt. In their case there was not a shadow of a grievance to redress, and on this account, as well as because of the terrible consequences of their act, their crime surpasses in enormity and turpitude that of all other [illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] a [illegible] who have [illegible] Brown [illegible] person Davis and [illegible] guilty than he, and we hope never to see the vengeance of the law light upon the head of the humble criminal and purposely suffer more powerful malefactors to escape their just pains and penalties.

Disloyal [illegible] Rights.—Now that the new Constitution of Missouri adopted [illegible] [illegible] rights [illegible] that State [illegible] here and [illegible] share the privileges [illegible] Several parties have written to us calling attention to the necessity of having a law enacted by our Legislature for the protection of the State against disloyal voters. Such a law is in existence now, and if the people do not [illegible] in all elections [illegible] their own fault. The Legislature last fall provided that no person shall vote in any State or county election in the State who has been directly engaged in the rebellion, &c., and that any voter who is challenged on this ground may be required to swear that he has never been so employed, &c., and if he refuses to take this oath his vote shall be rejected. Section 698 of our Criminal Code provides as follows:

Sec. 698. [illegible] of this State [illegible] oath or affirmation [illegible] shall wilfully [illegible] shall be deemed guilty of perjury.

Hence it will be seen that there is already a law in force against the exercise of the right [illegible] who has [illegible] against the Government, and that any who swear falsely in regard to their conduct in the rebellion are to be deemed guilty of perjury, and of course liable to punishment therefor.

Rains in Oregon and Washington.—It is generally represented in the Atlantic States that an immense amount of rain falls in the State of Oregon and Washington Territory—far more than in the Eastern States. Is it so? We have now lying before us a statement of the amount of rain which fell at Fort Vancouver W. T. in 1861, which gives the rain for that year at [illegible] inches and 10 100ths. The falling of this rain was distributed through all the months of the year as follows:

January	[illegible]	July	0 93
February	1 [illegible]	August	0 30
March	3 [illegible]	September	2 81
April	1 [illegible]	October	1 06
May	0 [illegible]	November	5 [illegible]
June	1 [illegible]	December	5 17
Total number of inches			31 40

November, December and January are our rainy months. In February, there is much less rain than in January or March, and less in October than September.

We have no statements at command by which we can compare the amount of rain which falls here, with that which falls in the Eastern States. In Central Illinois, however, in 1859 there fell of melted snow 2 24 100th, rain 32 71-100th—making 34 95 inches. It thus appears that more rain falls in Central Illinois than at Fort Vancouver, Washington Territory.

The Late Indian Fight.—We quote from Lieut Hobert's report the following account of the fight his command lately had with the Indians:

On the day of arriving at the Malheur the scouts in the advance unintentionally exposed themselves and were seen by a party of three Indians who were gathering berries. They fled to the brush, leaving their horses. On the arrival of the command, every effort was made to find them so that they would be unable to transmit intelligence of our presence to the main body of the Indians but they concealed themselves so effectually that it was impossible to do so. The train was camped and the command, with the exception of the camp guard, was pushed rapidly forward on the Indian trail, hoping to reach the camp of the Indians and surprise them. On our way up the river, three mounted Indians were seen and chased by the advance, and their horses captured, the Indians escaping to the brush. We kept on the trail until late in the afternoon, riding most of the time at a trot, or a gallop, passing several recent camps, until the trail became blind, the stock appearing to have been scattered in all directions. The command was then divided into several parties and the country within a circuit of several miles thoroughly scouted, but without attaining our object, and we returned to camp after dark. The next day small parties went out, but could find no traces of the Indian camp. Our camp was on a little flat, situated where a small creek joins the Malheur, bounded by the Malheur on the front and left, the creek on the right, and a high precipitous mountain in the rear. On the opposite side the mountain rose in broken ridges directly from the river. This was the only camp in several miles, there being no water in the mountains, and bunch grass being high up in divides. About an hour and a half before daylight the picket guard reported Indians near the camp; the stock was driven in, the men called to arms, the horses saddled and the howitzer put in position. While this was being done, the Indians finding themselves detected, opened a heavy fire on the camp in all directions, but heaviest from a bench on the mountain in the rear of the camp. A charge of canister was immediately thrown among them and they fell back. It was then reported that the horses and a number of mules had broken from the guard and ran in the direction of the mountain in the rear. A party under Sergeant Wallace and Corporal Walker of Company B were instantly sent to charge the hill and recover the stock, the Indians in the rear having fell back shouting as they did so to the party opposite us. In the front they commenced a rapid fire, by which private Jones of Company D, Oregon Cavalry was wounded in the arm, and prepared to make an attack on the camp, but a few charges of spherical case and canister caused them to retreat over the mountain. The stock taken having by this time returned to camp, reinforcements were pushed forward to the party of Sergeant Wallace which was still in pursuit of the Indians. The Indians were pursued five or six miles, a running fight being kept up all the time till they managed to escape down a steep rocky canyon, leaving in our hands the body of one Indian, whom they were unable to take off, his arms, ammunition and nine horses. Three other dead Indians were carried off by them together with their wounded, how many in number I could not say, the country being cut up with canyons breaking off from the main ridge that an Indian could elude pursuit by going into them. The horses captured were covered with blood and I think quite a number of Indians must have been wounded as the fire of our men was quick and well directed. During the pursuit Corporal Walker and Private Phillips of Company B separated from the main party in chase, and on the Indians coming out of a canyon behind them turned and fought their way back through the Indians. Private Phillips was seriously wounded. Corporal Walker turned back and killed an Indian that was just going to knock Phillips off his horse. The Indians did not pursue them further. By this time others had come up and continued the pursuit till the Indians separated and escaped into the canyons. The number of Indians cannot be correctly estimated. The mounted Indians numbered about seventy; the Indians on foot kept on the high points and in the heads of the rocky canyons, and must have been in large numbers.

Genteel.—The Marysville Express wishing to use language which should include Jeff. Davis and designate him by an appropriate descriptive term, says:

[illegible] never lose sight of the fact that the war has not extinguished a single right either of a State or an individual [illegible] possessed before the war was inaugurated.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN!

BY AUTHORITY OF THE SECRETARY OF THE Treasury, the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest per annum, known as the SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These Notes are issued under date June 15th, 1865, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible at the option of the holder into

U S 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds.

These bonds are now worth a premium [illegible] including gold interest from November, which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan at current rates, including interest, about [illegible] per cent. per annum besides its exemption from STATE AND MUNICIPAL TAXATION, which adds from one to three per cent. more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents	$100
Ten	$500
20	$1000
$1	$5000

Notes of all denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the GREAT POPULAR LOAN Of the People!

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET

Less than $300,000,000 of the Loan authorized by the last Congress are now on the market.

This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within four months, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

Cultivating a Disposition.—The writer of the following withholds his name [illegible] from the public. We [illegible] presented with the lines that were [illegible] and feeling [illegible] favorable to the sentiment we give them the best [illegible]. Many, [illegible] the [illegible] of the press which are more paste compared to it. If we but look on the bright side of life there is much goodness in the world, although at a superficial glance one [illegible] incline to doubt it. [illegible] to be good, great, at best, like sunshine in the world. The [illegible] these works shows to what extent prosperity will attend the investment of money in [illegible] of the industrial art. Mass Meeting at Belpassi.

A number of the citizens of Marion county met at the Belpassi Academy, according to previous notice, on Saturday the [illegible] of July, 1865. The meeting was organized by electing I. H. Poujade Esq., Chairman, and E. P. Henderson, Secretary.

[illegible] Secretary having stated the object of the meeting, presented and read the following Preamble and Resolutions:

Whereas, The Congress of the United States has [illegible] important amendment to the Constitution of the United States making the subject of negro slavery [illegible] ratified by three-fourths of the State Legislatures in order that the same may become a part and parcel of the Constitution of the United States, and

Whereas, The State of Missouri and other States have by an enactment disfranchised all persons who were in any way engaged in carrying on the late rebellion against the United States Government, or in giving aid and comfort to those who were engaged in said rebellion, and

Whereas, Many such disfranchised persons have already emigrated to Oregon and doubtless many more of them will soon emigrate hither; therefore,

Resolved, 1. That whilst we would heartily welcome and encourage the immigration of good and loyal citizens to our adopted State, we feel assured that it would be greatly detrimental to the peace and prosperity of Oregon to be overrun by hordes of disfranchised rebels and traitors.

2. Resolved, That in the opinion of this meeting, such measures as may be consistent with the Constitution of the United States and the State of Oregon should be speedily taken by the proper authorities to protect our State against such encroachments.

3. Resolved, That we as citizens of Oregon do most heartily approve and endorse the proposed Constitutional amendment, and believe that an extra session of the Legislature should be convened forthwith to ratify the same.

4. Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to draw up a suitable memorial to His Excellency the Governor of Oregon, praying him to call such extra session of the Legislature of Oregon at as early a day as in his judgment he may think proper, for the purpose of ratifying said Constitutional amendment, and also to adopt such measures as may be constitutional and necessary to guard our State against the aggression of disloyal rebels and traitors.

Messrs. Welch, Engle, Henderson, Jackson, Dilley, Magone and the chairman [illegible] their adoption. The vote being taken on the [illegible] of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, they were carried unanimously.

The chair then appointed Messrs. Magone, [illegible] a committee, [illegible] the 4th resolution, and on motion of Mr. Engle, E. P. Henderson and W. H. [illegible] were added to the committee.

After a short delay the committee reported the following memorial, which, on motion, was adopted unanimously:

To His Excellency, [illegible] Gibbs, Governor of Oregon: We the undersigned citizens of Oregon would most respectfully pray Your Excellency to convene a special session of the Legislature for the purpose of passing upon the proposed amendment of the Constitution of the United States abolishing negro slavery within the United States of America, and also to adopt proper measures to guard our State against the encroachments of disfranchised rebels from other States.

The following persons came forward and signed their names: I. H. Poujade, J. Magone, L. W. W. Goudy, Joseph Engle, S. W. R. Jones, S. Welch, Dr. Poujade, John Goodall, Jas. Smith, D. M. Hall, A. [illegible], James [illegible], R. H. [illegible], J. [illegible], McLaughlin, E. P. Henderson.

On motion, the Secretary was directed to forward a copy of these proceedings to His Excellency the Governor, and also a copy to the OREGONIAN and Statesman for publication.

On motion, the meeting adjourned.

E. P. Henderson, Secretary.

The Terrible Explosion at Mobile.—The following account of the cause of the disastrous explosion at Mobile, is copied from the New Orleans Times of June 6th:

Sergeant Ingraham of the First District police force, heard a strange story yesterday from the lips of a man that he afterwards sought out and arrested. The story was of the late terrible explosion at Mobile, and of his participation in the origin of that horrible disaster. Why he became so loose of tongue is not yet evident.

The sergeant did not wish to terrify the man, as that would preclude the possibility of getting at the facts of the case and the names of his accomplices, so he merely told the prisoner to go with him, and took him to the First District Station.

The case being of a military character, it was reported to Colonel Starring, Provost Marshal General, who took charge of the prisoner.

The following is the charge entered against the prisoner:

"John Jackson Wall arrested by Sergeant Ingraham charged with being implicated in the explosion at Mobile, and with the blowing up of two steamers."

In conversation with the officer at the police station, being questioned he told the following story: On the night before the explosion at Mobile, he helped to lay three torpedoes between two buildings—both stored with gunpowder. These three were laid by him, with the assistance of two other men, under the direction of a Confederate Major, who with drawn sword threatened the men with instant death on the slightest resistance. After the torpedoes were laid a shell with a long fuse attached was given him, and he was told where to place it—at the end of the lane made by the three torpedoes. He did as he was bid: he ascended a plank, he put down the shell, the fuse uppermost. Then, the end of the fuse was lighted by the Major, the three men hurriedly getting out of the way. The next morning the explosion occurred.

The above are the series of circumstances connected with the arrest of this man. He gave the name of the Confederate Major, which is not recollected. The whole matter may be true or may be the gossip of an idle tongue. This is left for the proper authorities to decide.

Belligerent Rights Withdrawn.—The announcement of the withdrawal by France of belligerent rights from the rebels is made by Secretary Seward to Secretary Welles, as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, June 17, 1865.

Hon. Gideon Welles—Sir: I have the honor to inform you that it has been made known to this Department by the Minister of the United States resident in France that the Imperial Government of that country has removed all restrictions heretofore imposed by it upon naval intercourse with the United States. I have also the pleasure to inform you that I have learned, in the same authentic manner, that the Imperial Government of France has withdrawn from the insurgents of the United States the character of belligerents which heretofore that Government had conceded to them, and those proceedings by the Government of France have been prompted by the express desire of reviving old sympathies between the two nations whose interests and traditions constantly invite them to cultivate most cordial relations. I beg leave to suggest the importance of communicating these facts to the proper officers of the navy.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obt. serv't,

WM. H. SEWARD.

Stephens's Statement.—New York, June 1[illegible]. The Times' Washington special says: A. H. Stephens, in his lengthy argument on the reasons and causes which caused him to join the rebel Confederacy, says he always believed in the right of secession, but never in the policy. He was educated to believe in the right of secession, from whence sprung his conviction, and he was strengthened in these convictions by the last annual message of Buchanan and opinion of Attorney General Black. He was also confirmed in his views by the able and honest efforts of the New York Tribune. He claims to have exerted all his faculties to their utmost to prevent secession, and that he accepted the Vice Presidency of the Confederacy only because it was tendered unanimously, and for the purpose of exerting as far as lay in his power those great principles of freedom which lie at the foundation of American constitutional liberty, if possible. He [illegible] the Confederate States as much as possible like that of the United States, in this belief [illegible] all the [illegible] and safeguards of liberty [illegible].

WISTAR'S BALSAM —OF— WILD CHERRY!

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY, WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST, INCLUDING EVEN CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known: so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of PULMONARY COMPLAINTS has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—

S. H. FINLEY, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.

E. BOYDEN, M. D., Exeter, Me.

ALEXANDER HATCH, M. D., China, Me.

R. FELLOWS, M. D., Hill, N. H.

W. B. LYNCH, M. D., Auburn, N. J.

ABRAHAM SKILLMAN, M. D., Boundbrook, N. J.

H. D. MARTIN, M. D., Mansfield, Pa.

The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of WISTAR'S BALSAM have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

TO CALIFORNIANS AND [illegible]

After October 1, 1863, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper, which will bear the printed names of both SETH W. FOWLE & Co., Boston, Mass., and JOHN D. PARK, Cincinnati, Ohio, as well as fac simile of the signatures of "I. BUTTS," "SANFORD & PARK," and "H. WISTAR, M. D."

A Picture of Memory

Among the beautiful pictures
That hang on Memory's wall,
Is one of a dim old forest,
That seemeth the best of all;
Not for its gnarled oaks olden,
Dark with the mistletoe—
Not for the violets golden
That sprinkle the vale below,
Not for the milk white lilies,
That lean from the fragrant hedge,
Coquetting all day with the sunbeams,
And stealing their golden edge;
Not for the vines on the upland,
Where the bright red berries rest,
Nor the pinks, nor the pale sweet cowslip,
It seemeth to me the best.

I once had a little brother
With eyes that were dark and deep;
In the lap of that old dim forest
He lieth in peace asleep;
Light as the down of the thistle,
Free as the winds that blow,
We roved there the beautiful summers,
The summers of long ago;
But his feet on the hills grew weary,
And, one of the autumn eves,
I made for my little brother
A bed of yellow leaves.

Sweetly his pale arms folded
My neck in a meek embrace,
As the light of immortal beauty
Silently covered his face;
And when the arrows of sunset
Lodged in the tree-tops bright,
He fell in his saint like beauty
Asleep by the gates of light.
Therefore, of all the pictures
That hang on Memory's wall,
The one of the dim old forest
Seemeth the best of all.—Alice Cary

Playing with a Crocodile.

The monkeys, among the other characteristics which show a closer connecting link with the human species than is at all agreeable, possess that love of seeing how near they can get to danger without being hurt, which finds a place in almost every man's breast, as especially odd, but none the less true.

The rivers all through the kingdom of Siam abound with crocodiles in an extraordinary manner. Indeed the creatures are so plentiful, so immense and so happy that one might suppose when the world was built, these streams were made a watery Eden for some original Adam and Eve crocodile, and that they had remained there ever since with their numberless descendants, guiltless of any fall such as overtook our human progenitors, especially fortunate in the fact that their little peculiarities of gobbling up all sorts of living creatures, which have the ill luck to come within reach of their capacious jaws does not count at all as sin.

A river which exults in the unpronounceable name of Paknam-Ven is their favorite place of resort, possibly from the fact that the forests which border the stream are as full of monkeys as—as New York is of dandies. If either species of animal is offended by the comparison let a deputation come and demand an apology. That very human desire which the monkeys possess always to be in mischief—especially mischief that has the malicious result of annoying something or somebody—prompts them to worry the crocodile, and at the same time proves the truth of the theory with which we set out, that they love to run nearer to peril than it is at all safe to go.

My friend the crocodile—I don't mean the man I just parted from at the corner with great protestations of affection on both sides, and who is probably at this moment abusing me energetically to the first mutual friend he chanced to meet—but the original Adam, in the picturesque river of Paknam Ven. Being perfectly aware of his amiable weakness on the part of the monkeys, he lends himself to the sport with all the good nature of your chief confidant, who invites you to dinner with the intention of allowing you to pay for the repast by making love to your wife, or forging your name, or getting you between his jaws in any other manner desirable, and conducts the whole transaction in the most lively and agreeable way that one can imagine.

My fellow-traveler and I had been for some time staying at the house of a Chinese, who had settled near the bank of the river, and we had been told of this strange performance, to which we listened, I must acknowledge, with considerable incredulity.

But one day we were out on the river in a boat, with the son of the old man at whose house we were stopping, and had an opportunity of witnessing the strange sport.

Our young boatman was one of the most intelligent Chinese I ever saw. He had somewhere picked up a sufficient smattering of German and English to make himself understood after a fashion, and, though he occasionally made a strange jumble of the two languages, was perfectly satisfied with his own proficiency, and regarded as one of the marvels of the universe by his admiring parent.

We had been shooting some curious looking birds, whose gay plumage attracted our attention—collecting rare plants, and amusing ourselves with the busy idleness in which travelers delight.

Fung had rowed the boat into a deep sort of a bayou, and we were all sitting still, watching the [illegible] of a bright-winged waterfowl, when suddenly the young Chinaman, whose hearing was as acute as that of a wild animal, put up his hand and [illegible] a signal of silence.

"What is it?" I asked in a whisper.

After some difficulty he made us understand that there was a crocodile near, and that we should probably have the pleasure of seeing with our own eyes the remarkable performance concerning which we had, perhaps, exhibited more polite [illegible] than quite satisfied Master Fung's self [illegible].

He paddled the boat noiselessly toward the [illegible] of the bayou, [illegible] near a little island [illegible] thick bushes [illegible] us from sight, and yet gave us a view up and down the stream.

[illegible] had established himself comfortably in a [illegible] basin near the shore, his [illegible] hide under the water until only the horny head was exposed, with the great jaws wide open, as if to express the serene height of amiability in which he chanced to find [illegible] at the time.

There was a strong temptation to send a bullet down the great cavern of a throat, but we waited for the conclusion of the little game before we disturbed his repose by any rude greeting. An im[illegible] close to the bank, was covered with troops of [illegible], chattering and arguing among themselves at a fine rate, their [illegible] every moment [illegible] by new comers, until the noise was [illegible].

It was quite evident that they were discussing their plans for their [illegible] frolic, and old and young were too much excited to think of anything beyond the sport for which the crocodile waited with a complacency that was delightful to behold.

At last they reached that state of high spirits when they were ready to bother their enemy just as you have seen a party of wine-inspired young sters worry a [illegible]. One of the most agile or most imprudent among the troops descended the tree until he could suspend himself by the tail from a branch near enough to the water to enable him to swing back and forth within any easy distance of the crocodile, who smiled more ferociously than ever.

The monkey, with that agility which even a rope-dancer cannot in the slightest degree approach, swung out, darted his claw toward the reptile as if with the intention of giving him a scientific one, two, on the nose, was out of reach before the ponderous jaws of the reptile could snap together, and then turned a summersault to express his delight, while his companions shrieked and jumped by way of encouraging the performance.

Very soon nearly the whole troop became so insane with the fun that they found it necessary to be more than idle spectators.

They slid down the tree, but, not finding any other branch convenient, they formed a chain by catching hold of each other's claws and winding their caudal extremities about each other's legs until the lowest of the band could reach the original performer of the feat. He grasped the ankle of his neighbor in his hand and then they all swung back and forth with the rapidity of lightning and yelling like a troop of aldermen after dinner at every effort the animal made to catch a stray leg or arm between his teeth.

The odd sport went on for a full hour, the monkeys growing more and more excited and the crocodile never once losing his patience, probably well aware from experience that in the end he should be repaid for having so kindly lent himself to their amusement.

At last an unlucky monkey slid down the trunk of the tree, jumping unceremoniously over the heads and backs of his companions, evidently with the intention of taking the place of the one who occupied the post of danger near the water.

The whole crowd yelled and chattered louder than ever, and the crocodile's mouth [illegible] water, but he gave no further token of eagerness.

The monkey had nearly reached the last one of the line when he made a misstep, lost his hold and fell into the river. There was one cry of agony that was fairly human in its intensity and the unhappy wight was dragged under the water. The crocodile had disappeared.

The chain was immediately broken, the monkeys flew up the tree in terrible haste, their merriment changed to doleful cries and there they sat wringing their hands and bewailing the fate of their companion.

We waited for an instant and then Fung rowed out into the river. We discharged our guns [illegible] with [illegible]. He dove under the water again, and the air was filled with new terror at the report of our rifles. Fell precipitately into the [illegible] to their shrieks of anguish and fear reaching [illegible] after the whole troop had disappeared.

A few days later we were [illegible] the same performance [illegible] unaccountable [illegible] of deliberate suicide [illegible] of the monkey race.

We had landed [illegible] and were sitting on the bank [illegible] the lunch [illegible] we had brought with us, when we saw a monkey come rushing out of the wood, followed by a troop of his companions.

He ran up a tree close to the water and the others [illegible] him, yelling as if in de[illegible] heavy blows and flinging [illegible] making no resistance, and only giving vent to an occasional moan of distress.

He was either a pariah of the tribe or else he had been guilty of some crime against the laws of their republic which called for such harsh treatment on the part of his judges.

Suddenly he suspended himself by one hand from the branch and uttered an appealing scream, apparently trying to soften the hearts of his persecutors.

The only response he received was a cry of full [illegible] scorn and mockery that no hearer could have pretended to mistake the meaning or could have [illegible] pitiful human sound.

The unfortunate—we will call him so, if a victim, since we are free to confess that our sympathies always go with the culprit, whether human or monkey—waited for several moments suspended by one hand to the branch and throwing appealing glances to the group who only increased their cries and condemnation.

At length with a single groan fuller of agony than any sound I ever heard in my life he deliberately loosed his hold of the bough and sank in the water.

The current, muddy and rather swift, closed over the last despairing wail. The troop of monkeys remained perfectly silent. The poor creature rose to the surface—rose and without the slightest effort sank for the last time beneath the stream.

THE TWO NAPOLEONS.—The Paris correspondent of the London Times commenting on the trouble between the Emperor and his cousin Prince Jerome, in regard to the speech by the latter at Ajaccio and the resignation of the Prince of the Vice Presidency of the Privy Council, remarks:

The public has been struck, not by the fact of the Prince's resignation, but by the manner in which it is conveyed. The word "subject" does not occur in the concluding part of it, and the latter which in ordinary courtesy should reach its destination before its publication in the newspaper, may be first seen by His Majesty in the columns of La Presse. This departure from the rules usually observed, even in private intercourse, will not produce a better feeling between the Imperial cousins. Rumor says that the Prince contemplates another visit to the United States, or to some other distant country, and will remain long enough for this cloud to blow over. But whether he goes or stays, he must now, at least, be convinced that Napoleon III will no more than the subject of his late panegyric allow members of his family or his Government to entertain views on public affairs which do not completely coincide with his own.

I have just heard that the Empress Regent has declined accepting the Prince's resignation as Vice President of the Privy Council, on the ground that she has no authority to do so, and that the Emperor only can decide. Her Majesty had also entreated his Imperial Highness not to publish the Ajaccio speech as a pamphlet. He replied that the government might prosecute him if they thought proper, but that publish he would. Accordingly, it has been published.

The Paris correspondent of the London Daily News says:

The one great and unpardonable crime of Prince Napoleon is that at this delicate crisis of the Mexican question he glorified the Monroe doctrine and declared that Napoleon I had foreseen it with acquiescence. Here is where the shoe pinches. The Emperor is bent upon maintaining Maximilian in Mexico, and he sees that the country is almost unanimously disinclined to support him in this the greatest mistake of his life. One has only to read Mr O'Quin's report on the budget to see that even the packed majority in the Corps Legislatif is not prepared for this sacrifice of men and money which France must inevitably be called upon to support, unless the last French soldier speedily turns his back on Mexico. Prince Napoleon rejoices in the discomfiture of the South and feels persuaded that the consequence of the restoration of the unity of the United States must be the impossibility of a prolonged French occupation of Mexico without a fearful war. It is on this account that the Emperor classes his cousin with "enemies" of his Government.

GLOUCESTER, March 28, 1864.

Messrs. TILTON & McFARLAND,
Safe Manufacturers, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen—From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase of him one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes."

On the 18th of February last, a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and [illegible] in the safe. After the fire the so-called "safe" was taken from the ruins, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, etc., their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was in the Lillie's safe less subjected to the same fire, [illegible] however, and [illegible] than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among them those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated hospitals of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Cambridge Place; Paul's Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; Westminster, Broad Sanctuary; Charing Cross, Agar street, Strand; London, Whitechapel road; Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from them their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their bodies bowed down, [illegible] disqualifying them for the [illegible] of [illegible] or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid [illegible] thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies; see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.
